

Monologue written for Serzh Ghazaryan

Learn and be prepared to perform on 08-30-2025 at 10 AM

Please feel free to develop the back story any way you wish.

CARLTON

I am sorry that I have to -- well, I have to experiment on you. I am not a bad person. I just have to do this to see if it will work on my sister. I promise I will not try and hurt you. You see, this book is my last chance to save my sister. She is a -- I know this will sound crazy to you, but it is the truth. She is a vampire. I can not allow her to keep killing people, especially my friends. So I now have this book. I got it off the internet, but I am hopeful it will work. You see, it is a book of spells. Please don't laugh. I mean you are tied up here in this place, and there is really nothing you can do, so laughing is probably not a good idea. I will start with some simple spells just to see if they work.

(He pages through the book to a spell and reads the title, then says the spell.)

By the gentle leaf and the dove's soft flight,

(MORE)

(CONTINUED)

CONTINUED:

CARLTON (CONT'D)

By crystal's grace and
candlelight,

I call the wind, I call the sea,

Unveil my heart, set my spirit
free.

Let sorrow lift and pain depart,

Let past illusions fall apart.

With love's own light, the way reveal -

My open heart, now free to heal.

(Carlton is shocked
by what happened as it appears the woman
on the chair is now
naked.)

Oh, dear. This is not what I intended. Wait. I will get something to cover you. I did not mean for you to be naked. I will not look. I mean, I did not look.
I think you have to get dressed the normal way. I will just wait outside. Sorry again.